8. Principles for accounting and depreciation of fixed assets, financial lease fixed assets, and investment properties:

- Tangible fixed assets:

*The cost of tangible fixed assets includes the purchase price and any directly attributable costs necessary to bring the fixed assets into their operational state. For self-constructed or self-produced tangible fixed assets, costs include construction costs, actual production costs incurred plus installation costs. *Depreciation of tangible fixed assets is calculated using the straight-line method for all assets, based on rates determined to allocate the cost of the assets over their estimated useful lives. Borrowing costs shall be recorded in financial expenses in the year unless such borrowing expenses are accounted (capitalized) into the value of assets due to being directly related to construction investment, purchase of assets, or production of such uncompleted assets.

The capitalization of borrowing costs shall be suspended during periods when the process of construction investment or production of uncompleted assets is interrupted, unless such interruption is necessary and shall cease when the principal activities necessary for the preparation of the uncompleted asset into use or sale have been completed. Borrowing costs incurred thereafter will be recorded as operating expenses for the financial year.

15. Principles for recording accrued expenses

20. Principles and methods of recognizing revenue

Revenue is recognized when the results of a transaction can be reliably measured, and it is probable that the economic benefits associated with the transaction will flow to the company.

- (i) Revenue from sales of goods is recognized when the majority of the risks and benefits associated with ownership of the goods have been transferred to the buyer, and the goods have been delivered and accepted by the customer.
- (ii) Revenue from provision of services is recognized when the majority of the risks and benefits have been transferred to the customer, the service has been provided, and is accepted by the customer.
- (iii) Revenue from financing activities is recognized as follows:

  - Revenue arising from unrealized foreign exchange differences is recognized based on the estimated exchange rate at the transaction date for realized differences and at the financial year-end for unrealized differences.

21. Accounting principles for revenue deductions

- If products, goods or services consumed in the previous periods, but subject to price reductions, trade discounts, or returns in the next period but occur before the issuance of the financial statements, these are considered adjusting events after the Balance sheet date. Such adjustments will reduce the revenue on the financial statements of the reporting period (previous period).
- If products, goods or services are subject to price reductions, trade discounts, or returns after the issuance of the financial statements, these adjustments will reduce the revenue in the period in which they occur (next period).

22. Accounting principles for cost of goods sold.

The cost of goods sold is recognized when revenue from sales of goods (or revenue from service provision) arises during the accounting period.

23. Accounting principles for financial expenses

The company's financial expenses include interest expenses and other costs directly related to the company's loans.

24. Accounting principles for selling and administrative expenses

- Accounting principles for selling expenses reflect the actual costs incurred in the process of selling products, goods, and providing services.
- Accounting principles for administrative expenses reflect the overall management costs of the enterprise.

25. Principles and methods of recognizing current corporate income tax (CIT) expense and deferred CIT expense:

- Quarterly, based on the corporate income tax declaration, the provisional corporate income tax payable is recognized as current corporate income tax expenses. At the end of the financial year, based on the tax finalization declaration, if the provisional corporate income tax payable during the year is less than the amount due for the year, the additional corporate income tax payable is recorded as current corporate income tax expenses. If the provisional corporate income tax payable during the year exceeds the amount due for the year, the current corporate income tax expenses are reduced by the difference between the provisional corporate income tax payable and the actual amount due.
- When preparing the financial statements, deferred corporate income tax expenses are determined in accordance with the Accounting Standard on "Corporate Income Tax."
