IV. ACCOUNTING POLICIES APPLIED1. Principles for recognition of cash and cash equivalents

Cash includes cash on hand and demand deposits at banks.

2. Accounting principles for financial investmentsInvestment in a subsidiary

Investments in subsidiaries are recognized when the Company holds more than 50% of the voting rights and has control over the financial and operating policies, in order to obtain economic benefits from the activities of those entities. When the Company no longer has control over a subsidiary, the investment in that subsidiary is derecognized.

Investments in subsidiaries are initially recorded at cost and are not subsequently adjusted for changes in the investor's ownership interest in the net assets of the investee. Cost includes the purchase price and directly attributable expenses related to the investment. In cases where the investment is made using non-monetary assets, the cost of the investment is determined based on the fair value of those non-monetary assets at the transaction date.

Method for provision for impairment of investments

For long-term investments (not classified as trading securities) where the Company does not have significant influence over the investee, provisions for impairment are made based on the losses recognized in the financial statements of the investee.

NOTES TO THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS*For the period ended June 30, 2026Unit: VND3. Recognition principles for trade receivables and other receivables

Receivables are recorded at cost less provision for doubtful debts.

The classification of receivables into trade receivables, internal receivables, and other receivables depends on the nature of the underlying transactions or the relationship between the Company and the counterparties.

Method for making provision for doubtful debts: Provision for doubtful debts is estimated for the value of potential losses of receivables and other held-to-maturity investments with similar characteristics to receivables that are overdue or not yet due but are likely to be uncollectible due to the debtor's inability to pay, such as bankruptcy, liquidation procedures, disappearance, or absconding.

4. Inventory recognition principles

Inventory is recorded at cost (-) minus provisions for devaluation and provisions for defective or lost inventory. phẩm chất.

The cost of inventories is determined as follows:

Goods: includes purchase price, transportation costs, and other directly attributable costs incurred to bring inventories to their present location and condition.

Inventory valuation method: Weighted average cost method.

Inventory accounting method: Perpetual inventory system.

Method for making provision for inventory devaluation

Provision for inventory is made when the net realizable value of inventories is lower than their cost. Net realizable value is the estimated selling price less estimated costs of completion and estimated selling expenses. The provision amount is the difference between cost and net realizable value and is made for each inventory item whose cost is higher than its net realizable value.

5. Principles for recording fixed assets5.1. Tangible fixed assets

Tangible fixed assets are stated at original cost less accumulated depreciation. The initial cost of a tangible fixed asset comprises all expenditures of bringing the asset to its working condition and location for its intended use. The expenditures incurred beyond their originally assessed standard of performance are capitalised as an additional cost of tangible fixed assets when they have resulted in an increase in the future economic benefits expected to be obtained from the use of those tangible fixed assets. The expenditures which do not meet the above conditions are charged to the expenses in the year.

When the assets are sold or disposed, their original costs and the accumulated depreciation which have been written off and any gain or loss from disposal of assets are recorded in the income statement.

Tangible fixed assets purchased

The original cost of purchased tangible fixed assets shall consist of the actual purchase price less (-) trade discounts or reduction plus (+) taxes (excluding taxes to be refunded) and relevant expenses calculated to the time when such fixed assets are put into operation such as fees for installation and trial operation of fixed assets; specialists and other direct costs.

For fixed assets that are buildings and structures attached to land use rights, the value of the land use rights is separately determined and recognised as an intangible fixed asset.

5.2. Method of depreciating and amortizing fixed assets

Depreciation is charged to write off the cost of fixed assets on a straight-line basis over their estimated useful lives. Useful life means the duration in which the tangible fixed assets produce their effect on production and business.

The estimated useful life for assets is as follows:

Transportation and facilities

05 years

NOTES TO THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS*For the period ended June 30, 2026Unit: VND6. Principles for recording prepaid expenses

Prepaid expenses are all expenses that actually incurred but relate to the operating result of several accounting periods. The Group's prepaid expenses include the following: tools and equipment, property insurance, and warehouse rental costs.

Method of allocating prepaid expenses: The determination and allocation of prepaid expenses into costs of production and business operation of each period is on a straight-line basis. Based on the nature and level of each expense, the term of allocation is defined as follows: short-term prepaid expenses should be allocated within one year; Long-term expenses should be allocated in the term from 12 months to 36 months.

7. Recognition principles for liabilities

Liabilities are recorded at cost and not lower than the obligation payable.

The Company classifies liabilities into trade payables, internal payables, and other payables depending on the nature of the transactions or the relationship between the Company and the counterparties.

Liabilities are monitored in detail by payment terms, creditors, foreign currency type (including revaluation of monetary liabilities denominated in foreign currencies), and other factors as required for management purposes.

At the reporting date, the Company recognizes a liability when there is sufficient evidence that a probable loss has occurred, in accordance with the prudence principle.

8. Principles for recognition of equityOwner's contributed capital

Owner's contributed capital is formed from the initial capital contributions and additional contributions from shareholders. It is recorded at the actual amount of capital contributed in cash or in kind, valued at the par value of shares issued at the time of establishment, or additional capital raised to expand the Company's operations

Retained earnings

Undistributed after-tax profit is recognized as the profit (or loss) from the Company's business operations after deducting (-) corporate income tax expenses for the current period and adjustments due to the retrospective application of changes in accounting policies and retrospective adjustments for material errors from previous years.

Profit distribution is based on the Company's Charter and approved by the Annual General Meeting of Shareholders.

9. Salary policy and mandatory insurance contributions

Salaries are calculated and accrued into expenses for the period based on labor contracts and the Company's salary regulations. Accordingly, the Company makes contributions to social insurance, health insurance, and unemployment insurance in accordance with regulations issued by the Ministry of Labour, Invalids and Social Affairs, as amended from time to time in 2026.

10. Principles and methods of recognition of revenue and other incomeRevenue from sale of goods

Revenue from the sale of goods is recognized when all of the following five conditions are satisfied simultaneously:

- 1.The Company has transferred substantially all risks and rewards of ownership of the products or goods to the buyer;
- 2.The Company no longer retains management rights or effective control over the goods as the owner;
- 3.Revenue can be measured reliably. Where the contract allows the buyer to return purchased goods under specific conditions, revenue is only recognized when those conditions no longer exist and the buyer no longer has the right to return the goods (except for exchanges for other goods or services);
- 4.The Company has obtained or will obtain economic benefits from the transaction;
- 5.The costs incurred or to be incurred in relation to the transaction can be measured reliably.

NOTES TO THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS*For the period ended June 30, 2026Unit: VND10. Principles and methods of recognition of revenue and other income*Financial income

Financial income reflects revenue from bank interest and gains from share transfers.

Revenue from interest income is recognized when both of the following conditions are satisfied:

1. It is probable that economic benefits will flow from the transaction;
2. Revenue can be measured reliably.

Interest income is recognized on a time proportion basis and based on the effective interest rate for each period.

When an amount previously recognized as revenue becomes uncollectible, the uncollectible or doubtful amount must be recognized as an expense in the current period and not deducted from revenue.

11. Principles and methods of recognition of cost of goods sold (COGS)

Cost of goods sold reflects the cost of goods and other expenses recognized in cost of goods sold or as reductions to cost of goods sold during the reporting period. The cost of goods and services is recognized at the time the transaction occurs or when it is reasonably certain that such costs will arise in the future, regardless of whether cash has been paid. Cost of goods sold and revenue are recognized simultaneously in accordance with the matching principle

12. Principles and method of recording financial expenses

Financial expenses include expenses or loss related to the financial investment; Provision for devaluation of financial investment and other financial expenses.

Financial expenses are recorded in details by their content and determined reliably when there are sufficient evidences on these expenses.

13. Principles and methods of recognition of current and deferred corporate income tax (CIT) expenses

Current corporate income tax expense is the amount of corporate income tax payable calculated on taxable income for the year and the applicable corporate income tax rate.

Deferred corporate income tax expense is the amount of corporate income tax that will be payable in the future arising from the recognition of deferred tax liabilities during the year and the reversal of deferred tax assets recognized in prior years. The Company does not recognize deferred tax assets or deferred tax liabilities arising from transactions that are directly recorded in equity.

Deferred tax income represents the reduction in deferred tax expense arising from the recognition of deferred tax assets during the year and the reversal of deferred tax liabilities recognized in prior years.

The Company only offsets deferred tax assets and deferred tax liabilities when it has a legally enforceable right to offset current tax assets against current tax liabilities, and when the deferred tax assets and deferred tax liabilities relate to income taxes administered by the same tax authority for the same taxable entity, and the Company intends to settle current tax liabilities and assets on a net basis.

Tax liabilities payable to the State budget will be subject to final settlement with the tax authority. Differences between tax payable per accounting records and the amounts determined upon tax finalization will be adjusted when the official tax finalization is completed.

During the period, the Company applies a corporate income tax rate of 20%.

NOTES TO THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS*For the period ended June 30, 2026Unit: VND14. Financial Instruments*Initial recognition*Financial assets

In accordance with Circular No. 210/2009/TT-BTC dated November 6, 2009 ("Circular 210"), financial assets are appropriately classified, for disclosure purposes in the financial statements, as financial assets measured at fair value through profit or loss, loans and receivables, held-to-maturity investments, and available-for-sale financial assets. The Company determines the classification of financial assets at the time of initial recognition.

At initial recognition, financial assets are measured at cost plus directly attributable transaction costs.

The Company's financial assets include cash and cash equivalents, trade receivables, loans receivable, and other receivables.

Financial liabilities

Under Circular 210, for disclosure purposes in the financial statements, financial liabilities are appropriately classified as financial liabilities measured at fair value through profit or loss and financial liabilities measured at amortized cost. All financial liabilities are initially recognized at cost plus directly attributable transaction costs.

The Company's financial liabilities include trade payables, other payables, accrued expenses, borrowings, and loans.

Subsequent measurement

Currently, there is no requirement to remeasure financial instruments after initial recognition.

Offsetting financial instruments

Financial assets and financial liabilities are offset, and the net amount is presented in the separate financial statements only when, and only when, the entity has a legally enforceable right to offset the recognized amounts and intends either to settle on a net basis or to realize the assets and settle the liabilities simultaneously.
